Saturday, December 12, the most historic agreement on climate change was signed at the closing of COP21. President Hollande joined to encourage the team leaders, persuade parties of UN, to reaching an agreement whose depends upon the planet's survival. Here is an excerpt of his best speech to date.

Our destinies are linked when it comes to climate change. Each has one's limitations and I know them. But the only thing that matters now is to be right together. All requirements have not been met, all the claims were unsuccessful, but we will not be judged on a phrase but on the whole text, we will not be judged on a word but an act , not one day but over a century. So goes our collective credibility and that of the entire international community.-----

YOUR PRESENCE AT COP21 IS UNPRECEDENTED IN CLIMATE CHANGE AFTER MONTHS OF WORK SAYS PRESIDENT HOLLANDE TO THE UN PARTIES-----

Ladies and gentlemen, the presence here today of 196 delegations -you are the world- after so many months of work, is unprecedented in the history of the climate talks. Considerable hopes rose. The world has turned on, not only in this room but well beyond. Immediate actions were taken by local authorities, citizens, researchers, businesses. Coalitions were formed, initiatives have been taken in all the continents and I think particularly on renewable energy to what was done for Africa, that India has worn. I also know how we mobilised on the carbon price. We are therefore able to ensure the fight against climate change and development.-----

HERE COMES THE HISTORY THAT HAPPENS AND ALL CONDITIONS ARE MET AT THE LAST STEP

History happens, history is there, all the conditions are met and they will not be long before now. We are, you are on the last step, you have to climb again up to the challenge. There will be no postponement, there will be no possible reprieve, the breakthrough agreement for the planet is now. And it's up to you, to you alone in the name of what you represent all the world's nations, to decide.-----
